

ISWA Regional Young Professionals Group India: 1st Annual Meeting and Workshop on entrepreneurship in waste management

The ISWA Young Professionals Group \(YPG\) was established in 2013 with the aim to build a network of students and young professionals working in waste management around the world. The Group provides members a platform for networking and knowledge exchange, mutual learning and career growth. Over the past 3 years, the ISWA YPG has also become an international think-tank for overcoming local challenges in waste management. The members organize various activities, e.g. online discussions, mentorship & career development and initiatives in education and research.

After the successful launch of the ISWA YPG Regional Group in India in 2016, the group will get together for its first annual meet-up (13:30 – 14:45 h) on the margins of the IFAT India fair in Mumbai. The group will update on the past activities and brainstorm on new initiatives for the next years.

The meet-up will be followed by a workshop on entrepreneurship in waste management (15:15 – 17:00 h). This session will bring together professionals, policy makers, and entrepreneurs in a two-session event to address challenges, identify opportunities and share the most effective practices and recommendations to create a successful business in the waste management sector.

Everyone is welcome. Join the session and get to know this exciting group of motivated young professionals from India and around the world.
